A MESSAGE WITH NO LIMITATIONS. CAPACITY VS REACH.

The Problem

Woodside Church is about much more than a few hours on Sunday. With a unique series of teaching and serving opportunities, they want to reach the widest audience of servants as possible. With a humming church office open full-time supporting, on any given day, growth groups, childrens' groups, or care ministries like, their facilities are used to capacity. On Sunday mornings they offer 5 unique styles of worship in 2 different remote locations each requiring teams to support service production (like audio visual and sound), to a team that leads worship, to teams of people who greet those coming to worship. Furthermore, their members are so engaged that being out of town and missing something was a big concern for the individuals in the congregation.

What does a church do when their physical capacity is reached? Or when people want to still gain their message even if they can't be there live?

Solution

Woodside believes there is no true capacity to word of God and they believe no distance can stop his message, so spreading their message no longer ends at the capacity of its walls. With the help of Xyvid, Woodside Church's sermons, special events and other messages are shared using Xyvid Pro.

Xyvid, Inc., known for delivering virtual event broadcasting for the web, recently stepped in and provided its Xyvid Pro platform for use in wide spread public service. This high-resolution, affordable Internet-based broadcast option with quality equal to high-priced satellite broadcasting, is now Woodside Church's weekly solution that allows viewers from any location (out side of worship halls) to come together and rejoice in an up-close-and personal worship experience.

successfully archive sermon messages for on-demand replay so a message is never lost.

Whether they're cleaning up area roadways, helping elderly friends and neighbors in need, building bookshelves for a school library in Trenton NJ or praying with someone as they come to Christ, they do it all in the name of Jesus and can reach every ear that wants to hear!

Tangible Results

Woodside is a rapidly growing, dynamic church that stays constantly in touch and engaged with its church family. This, in turn, elevates their member participation and the financial support they gather for their causes. They now have intimate groups of gatherers, large worship congregations and a highly successful on-line community. Additionally, they
